CITY PAYS TRIBUTE TO MEN AND WOMEN ENROLLED FOR CAUSE OF THEIR COUNTRY

Unveiling of Tablet at City Hall Occasion For Great Public Gathering.

AFFAIR IS VERY INFORMAL

Hope Expressed That Roll Now Temporarily Erected Shall Later Be Replaced by Marble and Bronze; City Solicitor Higbee the Speaker.

In memory of the heroes of Connellsville who have gone out from here to fight for the freedom of humanity an honor roll containing the names of 883 men and women was dedicated last night. The tablet, which had been erected on the City Hall lawn, was first unveiled in the presence of hundreds who thronged North Arch street and Crawford avenue.

It was strictly an informal affair—a popular gathering.

"This memorial and these exercises are intended only to symbolize the affection we have for those who gave themselves for the common cause of us all," said City Solicitor L. C. Higbee who delivered the dedicatory address. "Our real feelings of affection are to be found in an unspeakable admiration for those who went forth to fight for the cause of humanity and the freedom of mankind."

A short parade preceded the dedication services. Led by the Connellsville Military band the women of the Red Cross in uniform the War Chest canvassing teams and Company G Third Pennsylvania Militia marched from the Trinity Lutheran church to the city hall. A quartet from the band, consisting of Roy Claybaugh, Robert Barkell, Lester Crawford and J. G. Hoover sang America.

The dedicatory prayer was delivered by Rev. G. L. C. Richardson. The services closed with the playing of the Star Spangled Banner by the band.

In introducing Attorney Higbee Dr. Ellis B. Burgess who had charge of the compilation of the honor roll said he believed the erection of the tablet was not the doing of a permanent thing.

"I trust to put these names we honor in marble and bronze. That will be a pride to us all. Their record stands before us and it is a record of which the people of Connellsville can be proud."

"The best sentiment of the mind and the deepest affection of the heart are incapable of expression verbally or in concrete," said Attorney Higbee in opening his address.

"Silence often betokens the profoundest consideration. This memorial and these exercises are intended only to symbolize the affection we have for those who gave themselves for the common cause of us all. Our real feelings of affection are to be found only in an unspeakable admiration for those who went forth to fight for the cause of humanity and the freedom of mankind.

"At the peace conference which will officially mark the close of the war we will not either demand or receive a material thing. The things for which we fought and won are not concrete or material. They are ideals, a broader vision and a loftier spirituality. We did not fight for conquest but for ideas and ideals."

The speaker declared that the marvel of civilization was the transformation of a peaceful civilian into a resolute soldier and asserted that the man to whom freedom was the greater soldier in the cause of justice. "An army made up of men like that never knows defeat and the flag of a nation of such men never trails in the dust."

Speaking of the heroic part taken in the decisive battles in France by the boys of this city he said: "People of Connellsville have a peculiar pride in the achievements of our army. At Chateau Thierry where an advancing and conquering foe met the first unyielding resistance was fought the decisive battle of the war. French fighters were forced to fall back and right there American ingenuity took charge and it didn't fall back. The foe met something it had never encountered before. That was an American army made up of boys of our nation among which were some of our own boys. When that battle ended the German army was going back. We realize with a thrill of pride that in the thickest of the fray there stood yielding not our own Company D."

Continuing Attorney Higbee said there were always great battlefields where wars had been won and lost and that such historic spots always had a peculiar hold on the people. "Like a Mecca for thousands on their tours Chateau Thierry," he said, "has a place in the hearts of Connellsville people for it was baptized in freedom's name with the blood of our own boys.

"To our boys we dedicate this memorial in loving admiration of them, their sacrifices, their devotions, their heroism and their achievements."

Throughout the evening the tablet is surrounded by many persons looking for the name of a son, brother or loved one. The reading of the names after dark was made possible when a flood light was placed in a window of the Clifton House and directed on the honor roll.

The dedicatory services were honored

EXILE TO REMOTE ISLAND FOR KAISER HOLLAND'S PLAN

Dutch, However, Will Give Up Former German Ruler If Allies Insist.

CROWN PRINCE INCLUDED

Suggestion is Made That the Netherlands Government Would Place a Naval Guard About Island of Confinement and Make Huns Pay Bill

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—If the Allies insist upon the delivery of the former German emperor and crown prince to an international court of justice Holland will yield but will first urge that the Allies content themselves with an understanding by Holland to intern them for life in one of the Dutch colonies, according to an Amsterdam dispatch to the Express.

Holland it is understood will suggest that Herr Hohenzollern and his son be placed on an island in either the East or West Indies where he will be guarded by a Dutch fleet.

It is also anticipated that Holland will be asked for compensation for permitting a violation of her neutrality by allowing German troops to pass through the province of Limburg on their retreat from Belgium and receiving ships from Antwerp. This compensation may possibly be the cession of certain territory along the Belgian frontier owned by Holland since 839. Perhaps the southern part of Dutch Limburg will be demanded. The population of this region is principally Belgian.

The official statement shows that of the total major casualties reported by General Pershing on November 27, 50,028 have been reported to the next of kin with 7,000 still to be reported. Of the 14,565 missing and prisoners of war sent in by General Pershing 14,093 have been reported to relatives but of the 189,000 total wounded only 69,841 have been cleared up finally.

BATTLEFIELDS OF FRANCE CLAIM LIVES OF ELEVEN; SEVEN DIE FROM DISEASE

TOLL OF DISEASE CLOSE TO THAT OF KILLED IN ACTION

Summary Shows Total of 75 Casualties Among Local Boys to Date.

WOUNDED HEADS THE LIST

Of the 883 men who have left their homes in this city to go out and fight in the cause of humanity and justice and freedom of men 11 have made the supreme sacrifice, nine meeting death on the field of battle, two dying of wounds received in action.

The names of these boys who gave up their lives that Hun kultur might be crushed and that the world might be saved for democracy, who gloried in sacrificing themselves for a righteous cause are marked on the Honor Roll dedicated last night by a star.

The summary of the casualties among Connellsville soldiers to date reported to Dr. Ellis B. Burgess who had charge of the compilation of the Honor Roll shows a total of 75. Seven died of disease and two died of wounds, a total of 18 dead.

The greatest number of casualties occurred in wounded, 35 men being listed in that column. Five were captured or reported missing.

The 32 wounded men include those who were gassed, shell shocked and those otherwise hurt in action.

Forty five men whose names appear on the Honor Roll were honorably discharged from the army.

Connellsville is represented in every arm and branch of the military service and subdivisions thereof. The larger number were attached to the infantry, field artillery, coast artillery and cavalry arms while many were assigned to subordinate divisions of the Engineers such as railway, forestry, electrical and construction units. Others serve in motor transport, sanitary, ammunition and ambulance trains. Still others are in the different units of the medical ordnance and quartermaster departments. Machine gun battalions and the tank service attracted many men who had the opportunity of selecting the arm of service. A number were attached to the radio signal balloon and photo corps. Men with mechanical bent or training became members of the motor mechanics and quartermasters repair units. A few became members of the United States guards and others military police. One, Dr. W. H. Everhart entered the dental service and his brother, Rev. W. J. Everhart was in attendance at the army chaplains training school at the time of his death. Several musicians were attached to the regimental bands. A large group of the younger men became enrolled in the Students Army Training Corps and in the Officers Training Schools.

Of the persons on the roll 33 men enlisted in the Engineers Corps, 11 in the Hospital Corps, 64 in the Aviation, 15 in the Marine Corps, 2 in the Navy, 11 to Limited Service, five as Red Cross Nurses and 594 in other branches of the service.

COMPILATION OF SERVICE ROLL A BIG UNDERTAKING

Wise Choice Was Made in the Selection of Committee to Do the Work.

REALLY A LABOR OF LOVE

In the compilation of the Honor Roll the Council of National Defense and the Committee of Public Safety and the city council could have made no wiser choice than was made. Dr. Ellis B. Burgess, chairman, has long been interested in the collection and preservation of matters relating to local history, hence the gathering of material necessary to form the roll was a labor of love to him.

Captain Harry Dunn, another member of the committee who has continuously served as a member of the draft board of District No. 2 since the work of selecting men for military service has been in progress and because of his long connection with the National Guard of Pennsylvania was well qualified to give assistance in compiling the roll. City Clerk A. O. Bixler, the father of two sons in the service had a sympathetic interest in the preparation of this memorial to all the boys who responded to our country's call which with his wide acquaintance enabled him to help materially.

The preparation of the roll involved a prodigious amount of work and consumed days of time. From the draft board records Dr. Burgess secured information relating to men who have entered the service under the provisions of the Selective Service Law. Through the use of coupons in the local newspapers he obtained information relating to the voluntary enlistments of many men in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

He found no little indifference upon the part of friends to making report of their sons entry into the service, hence he determined to make a house to house canvass of the city in order to supply the omissions of which he was confident there were many. Wherever he found a service flag in a window he stopped to make inquiry and learn the particulars concerning the person in whose honor the flag was displayed. Through these combined agencies Dr. Burgess was enabled to secure the mass of information which is contained in the Honor Roll as it appears on pages 8 and 9 of this issue of The Courier.

It is not presumed that every name entitled to a place thereon has been secured but the roll as printed represents the utmost of effort made to this date to secure every such name. The records Dr. Burgess has compiled are to be preserved and it is the desire of the committee to add to them not only all missing names but such details as to age, date of enlistment, rank, unit of service and casualties as are now lacking. Friends of boys in the service can do both them and the committee a splendid service if they furnish Dr. Burgess with any information the published roll shows he did not possess at the time it was prepared for publication.

"KATY" COLLINS IS FIRST LOCAL BOY FROM THE FRONT

Member of Company D Arrives Unexpectedly in the City on Leave of Absence.

James E. Collins, better known as "Katy," is the first Connellsville member of Company D to arrive home from the battlefields of France. He got in to the city shortly before noon today.

Collins was wounded in the foot and walks with a limp. He arrived in Newport News last week. His furlough home at this time was unexpected as he was to have gone to a hospital in Baltimore for treatment after which he was to have come here.

Collins was wounded early in the fighting in which Company D participated and spent some time in a hospital in France. He was among the first of the wounded to leave France after the signing of the armistice.

Collins was preceded home by Rosie Fuller of Uniontown, the only other Company D boy to arrive back from France as yet. Fuller got home Tuesday night.

Crim Inquest Monday.

An inquest into the death of Charles W. Crim, who was run down and fatally injured by an automobile on Thursday, November 28, will be held Monday night at 8 o'clock at Funeral Director Charles C. Mitchell's parlors by Coroner S. H. Baum of Uniontown.

WAR CHEST THIRD SUBSCRIBED, END OF FIRST WEEK

Enthusiasm is Rampant and Success in County Seems to Be Assured.

MINISTERS WILL BOOST

The Cause in Practically Every Church Tomorrow, Delivering Special Sermons. Many Meetings Arranged. Uniontown Adopts Our Plan.

The Fayette County War Chest campaign closes its first week today with not one third of the $400,000 minimum quota reported officially to headquarters at Uniontown. There are indications that the campaign met with better success during the first week but until district chairmen make reports of results attained in their districts the figures cannot be officially recorded against the quotas given the districts. Campaign Manager McDonald this morning addressed a strong letter to each district chairman emphasizing the importance of having a report each day concerning the drive's progress with figures to substantiate the report.

From every pulpit in Fayette county Sunday the gospel of giving will be preached. The endorsement of the War Chest by the ministers and the commending of the cause it represents to the consideration of their congregations comes at a critical time in the county wide drive and is expected to contribute much to the ultimate success campaign managers believe will crown this big and great drive.

That interest in the War Chest campaign has been fully aroused is indicated by the demands being received at headquarters for public meetings. At Dunbar township alone Charles B. Franks district chairman has arranged for eight meetings. Other district chairmen are also arranging several meetings for next week at towns in their territory. Woods N. Carr is arranging the public meetings and has already booked over 15 for next week. Four Minute men will appear Saturday evening in every theatre in the county and urge support for the War Chest. That feature of the speaking campaign is under the direction of I. B. Brownfield, chairman of the county four minute men.

Uniontown today followed Connellsville's example by commencing noonday luncheons in an effort to stimulate enthusiasm in the War Chest drive which has not come up to expectations at the county seat. Uniontown enters the second week of the campaign Monday with nothing more than a start against its quota of $1[illegible]000.

Notwithstanding difficulties Frank A. Tarr has gotten the Lower Tyrone campaign under way in excellent fashion and Campaign Manager McDonald is expecting an encouraging report by the first of the week. Likewise at Dawson the canvass has reached the point where definite results are being attained. Chairman R. D. Henry is pushing the drive with vigor.

More than ordinary handicaps are being overcome in Bullskin township where W. J. Miner is active director of the campaign. Canvassing of the mountain district presents unusual difficulties and in addition there is an influenza situation there which must be reckoned with. Mr. Miner reported to headquarters Friday afternoon that his organization was now complete and that canvassing has been commenced. He promised a detailed report early next week.

Workers in the coke region will not be officially recorded for the War Chest until next week and the addition of the aggregate of their pledges is expected to give contribution figures a big boost. The canvass is now being conducted at all plants under the direction of industrial captains appointed by L. W. Fogg, chairman of the coal and coke committee. The individual quota of two days wages a month for five months is generally being accepted and in many instances the response has been more than that asked.

NEARLY 1,500 MEN FROM TWO LOCAL DISTRICTS ACCEPTED FOR SERVICE OF THE NATION

District 2 Leads With 863, While No. 5 Sends 618.

REGISTRATION IS 12,055

Casualties Yet Unknown But Believed to Be About Ten Per Cent of the Number Who Entered the Service. Review of Work of the Draft Boards.

In connection with the dedication of the Honor Roll of the city of Connellsville it is deemed fitting and proper that reference be made to the work of the selective service boards having headquarters here and some statistics they have prepared are submitted.

Connellsville and the immediate surrounding townships supplied 1,481 men for the United States service in the war outside of the number that voluntarily enlisted, the above number being the total of drafted men sent to training camps by Local Boards of Districts Nos. 2 and 5 and accepted. District No. 2's total was 863, that of District No. 5 was 618.

The total number of registrants in both the districts was 12,055, there being 6,8[illegible] in District No. 2 and [illegible] in District No. 5. These figures were furnished today by the draft boards.

The number of casualties among the drafted men is not yet known but it is estimated at about 10 per cent. The casualty list of drafted men from Districts 2 and 5 is expected to be heavy as most of the men from here were in the 314th and 316th Infantry regiments which took part in the fierce battle of the Argonne Forest. Other local men served with the 110th Infantry, a National Guard unit which also was in that battle.

The men of Connellsville were under the jurisdiction of Local Board No. 2. This board jurisdiction embraced also Connellsville township, South Connellsville, Dawson, Everson, Lower Tyrone, Upper Tyrone and Bullskin township. Local Board No. 5's territory embraced Dunbar township, Vanderbilt, Dunbar borough, Saltlick township, Springfield township, Henry Clay township, Stewart township, Ohiopyle, Markleysburg and [illegible]

By Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM Dec 7—The Dutch minister at Petrograd who has arrived in Holland by way of Germany spoke freely on his arrival of the conditions brought about by Bolshevism in Russia and appealed to the workmen of all nations against Bolshevik tendency.

The minister characterized Bolshevism as the end of civilization. Translated into practice he declared Bolshevik principles are high wages for no work the taking of others property without punishment and no taxation. The Russian workmen he declared were far worse off than ever before. "I never dreamed of such corruption and tyranny and the absence of all semblance of freedom. One thing is certain and that is if she is left as she is now Russia will be completely ruined."

Rev J T Burns who was also to have spoken was unable to be present being confined to his home with illness.

Dr Burgess announced that some names were left off the honor roll because they had been sent to him misspelled and he had withheld them until they could be corrected. He said any errors which might be discovered would be gladly corrected if they were communicated to him.

The names have been placed on the roll in alphabetical order which makes it a simple matter to locate any relative or friend. The names are printed in black letters against a white background and stand out boldly.

The names of the men who were killed in action are preceded by a star. A black cross precedes the name of a soldier receiving a wound. A black triangle identifies a soldier who has died since entering the service and a black circle distinguishes the soldier who died of wounds. Those captured are set off by a black disc.

The tablet is supported by two pillars on the tops of each being the American eagle. Across the top of the tablet is written the inscription "Our Boys and Girls in the Service. Our Country and Lest We Forget."

KEPT PLEDGE TO SEND BREAD

American Nation Maintained Allied Loaf Through Self-Denial at Home Table.

AVERTED EUROPEAN DESPAIR

With Military Demands Upon Ocean Shipping Relieved World Is Able to Return to Normal White Wheat Bread

Since the advent of the latest wheat crop the only limitation upon American exports to Europe has been the shortage of shipping. Between July 1 and October 10 we shipped 65 980 30? bushels. If this rate should continue until the end of the fiscal year we will have furnished the Allies with more than 237 500 000 bushels of wheat and flour in terms of wheat.

The result of increased production and conservation efforts in the United States has been that with the cessation of hostilities we are able to return to a normal wheat diet. Supplies that have accumulated in Australia Argentine and other hitherto inaccessible markets may be tapped by ships released from transport service and European demand for American wheat probably will not exceed our normal surplus. There is wheat enough available to have a white loaf at the common table.

But last year the tale was different. Only by the greatest possible saving and sacrifice were we able to keep a steady stream of wheat and flour moving across the sea. We found ourselves at the beginning of the harvest year with an unusually short crop. Even the most optimistic statisticians figured that we had a bare surplus of 20 000 000 bushels. And yet Europe was facing the probability of a bread famine—and in Europe bread is by far the most important article in the diet.

All of this surplus had left the country early in the fall. By the first of the year we had managed to ship a little more than 50 000 000 bushels by practicing the utmost economy at home—by wheatless days wheatless meals heavy substitution of other cereals and by sacrifice at almost every meal throughout the country.

In January the late Lord Rhondda then British Food Controller cabled that only if we sent an additional 75 000 000 bushels before July 1 could he take the responsibility of assuring his people that they would be fed.

The response of the American people was 85 000 000 bushels safely delivered overseas between January 1 and July 1. Out of a harvest which gave us only 20 000 000 bushels surplus we actually shipped 141,000 000 bushels.

Thus did America fulfill her pledge that the Allied bread rations could be maintained and already the American people are demonstrating that with an awakened war conscience last year's figures will be bettered.

America's Pledge of Food Gave Heart to the Allies In Their Darkest Hour

Whatever is necessary America will send. That was America's pledge to the interallied food council. And because the American food army had hitherto made good the Allies took heart and went forward.

Farm enterprise and much soft corn increased pork supplies food conservation increased exports—total shipments doubled.

Sending to Europe 141 000 000 bushels of wheat from a surplus of apparently nothing was the outstanding exploit of the American food army in the critical year of the war.

NEVER SUCH A REMEDY FOR PILES

It will cost any sufferer 30 cents to prove that bleeding, itching or protruding piles, no matter how chronic or how painful, can quickly be helped.

Go to the Laughrey Drug Co., Connellsville, or the Broadway Drug Co., Scottdale, today, hand them 30 cents, say "I want a jar of San Cura Ointment" and if you aren't satisfied—your money back.

Yes, and more: try San Cura Ointment for old sores that people say will never heal, for fever sores, for itching skin, eczema, tetter, salt rheum, chapped hands, face or lips, for ulcers, carbuncles, boils, sore nipples and broken breasts.

It draws out poison; that's the secret of the wonderful success of San Cura Ointment; that's while it so quickly heals scalds, burns, cuts and bruises. It's best to use San Cura Soap at all times; it is a great aid in banishing pimples, blackheads and the germs of disease. 30 cents. Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa.—Adv.

Realistic.

During a Shakespeare celebration a number of local amateurs appeared in the great dramatist's most famous tragedy. Next day the principal actor inquired of a critical friend what he thought of the performance. "It was great! Simply great!" was the reply. "As you played Hamlet it was easy to see why Ophelia should go and drown herself."

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results.

ON BASIS OF COMPROMISE

Couple's Religious Differences, Which Caused Trouble Once a Year, Settled in Peculiar Manner.

Compromise where political and religious antagonisms are concerned is evidently possible in Belfast, according to the testimony of a recent visitor to that town. One day she had occasion to call at a house where a woman of the Roman Catholic faith had married a Protestant husband. On one side of the mantelshelf was a bust of the pope, on the other a bust of William of Orange. "I suppose you find it very difficult to agree at times?" inquired the visitor. "No," was the ready reply; "we only differ once a year, on the Boyne anniversary, when my husband comes home drunk and smashes my bust of the pope." "Then I suppose you return the compliment by smashing his William of Orange?" "Not at all—I put it in pawn and buy another bust of the pope with the money," was the unexpected answer.—Manchester (Eng.) Guardian.

Sleep Should Be Undisturbed.

People are beginning to realize that sound sleep isn't obtainable in a bed that rattles or squeaks or that shocks the nerves into semi-wakefulness by unusual slippings of the springs or unexpected creakings. The advent of the separate bed and the banishing of the double bed into the limbo of warming pans and nightcaps is a distinct advance from the standpoint of hygiene, sanitation and more rational sleeping habits. When separate beds, or, better still, separate sleeping chambers, are in universal use, men and women, especially nervous men and women, and delicate children, will get a good deal more sleep than they do at present; they'll derive more benefit from the sleep they do get. All this will make it easier for them to do with considerably less sleep than they now require.

OUR HONOR ROLL AND THEIRS.

The fact that the unveiling of the Honor Roll of Connellsville's sons in the service of our country came after the cruel and brutal foe of civilization and righteousness in government had been forced to a humiliating surrender in no wise lessens the tribute of respect the city has gladly willingly and proudly paid. The deferred dedication makes deeper but does not change the significance of the event as it should influence our lives and our relations to those to whom every honor is due.

Without regard to the particular time when this memorial has been turned over to the public the primary object remains the same. This is to show our appreciation of the magnificent giving up by the young men whose names are on the roll of all those things that bind men to home and kindred and the prospects [illegible] faith [illegible] held out to them in order that the [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] in [illegible] of righteousness. The memorial tablet itself gives evidence of the city's affection and regard and high esteem for those who have dared or have been willing to dare all to be entitled to the principles for which our nation stands right honorably be usurped. The [illegible] of [illegible] a splendid tribute to the [illegible] pair of [illegible] the birthplace home or former residence of hundreds of fine [illegible] firm-purposed young men who have been animated by the highest motives and impelled by a holy desire to serve their country and humanity in the time of their greatest need.

Had the ceremony of unveiling taken place before the signing of the armistice, when our interest in the progress of the enforced withdrawal of the Huns from the soil of France and Belgium was keyed to high pitch because of the knowledge we had that boys from Connellsville were contributing their strength skill daring and lives in speeding that withdrawal we would have perhaps been differently impressed by the ceremony than we were last night.

If there were now as little prospect of an early peace as there was at the time the proposal to erect an Honor Roll was first made some months ago the dedication of it would have stirred us to a renewed determination to leave nothing undone that would contribute toward the complete crushing of the enemy. As further proof of our will to win we would have been ready to make new sacrifices willing to spend and be spent in providing all that might be needed to carry the war to a victorious conclusion and to safeguard the comfort and welfare of the men who were relentlessly forcing the Huns into a position from which there would be no escape save through unconditional surrender.

Now that the smoke of battle has happily cleared away and the objects for which the men on our Honor Roll fought valiantly or sought eagerly to assist in attaining have been attained and the ceaseless anxiety that filled our hearts has given way to pleasant anticipations of our boys early return the dedication of this memorial should mean more than the mere token of a community's respect. We ought sensibly to feel the obligation now resting upon us to stand fast to and for the ideals for which some of our sons have paid and others stood ready to pay the full price of their soul's desire. Just as binding is the obligation upon us for whose sake this price was paid or ready to be paid to stand by and for these boys until the end of their service abroad and afterward when crowned with the glory of a great achievement they come home to resume their places in the industrial commercial and professional life of our country.

Having earned a nation's gratitude they now deserve a just recompense of reward—not as men ordinarily measure recompense but in opportunities for which all vigorous upstanding self-reliant men have always yearned and now will yearn more than ever as means whereby to show what they can do or accomplish. We must [illegible] and ready to willingly and generously provide these opportunities assured as we may be that the experience gained by the training and service these boys have had has made them impatient of petty things and petty people have given them a broader view of the relationships between themselves and their fellow men and taught them the meaning and value of service.

When the boys come home they too will compile an honor roll. We will want to be on it just as they have pride in being on the roll we have erected in their honor. We will have our names ineffacably inscribed upon their hearts if we catch the deeper significance and meaning of the simple ceremony that marked the unveiling of Connellsville's tribute to her honored sons living and dead.

"WHAT HAS ENGLAND DONE?"

In connection with the meeting to be held tomorrow afternoon in the high school auditorium in observance of Britain's Day the following verses have a singular appropriateness. They were written by Vilda Sauvage Owens and read at an exhibition of British government war lithographs held in Boston and later published in the Boston Transcript. The caption is that given above.

Strange [illegible] in this great hour when Righteousness
Hath won her war upon Hypocrisy
[illegible] some there be who lost in littleness
And mindful of an ancient grudge can ask
Now what has England done to win his war?
We think we see her smile but English smile
[illegible] shrug a lazy shoulder and—just smile
[illegible] were so little worth her while to pause
In her stupendous task to make reply

What has she done? When with her great gray ships
[illegible] lean destroyers grim invincible
She swept the prowling Prussian from the seas
And heedless of the slinking submarine
The hidden mine the Hun made treacheries
Her transports plied the waters ceaselessly
You ask what she has done? Have you forgot
That neath the burning suns of Palestine
She fought and bled nor wearied of the fight
Till from that land where walked the Nazarene
She drove the foul and pestilential Turk
[illegible] what has England done? [illegible] need to ask
[illegible] the fields of Flanders and of France
Where [illegible] crosses mark a million graves
[illegible] each cross [illegible] loved English name
[illegible] women. On that [illegible] ful isle
Where [illegible] hawthorn hedge thrushes sang
[illegible] meadow larks made gay the [illegible]
[illegible] blackened chimneys rear their [illegible] heads
[illegible] belching and the frightened [illegible] have fled
[illegible] fore the thunder of the whirring wheels
[illegible] and unlovely walls until the dim
[illegible] times a million not [illegible] women toil
[illegible] tender unaccustomed fingers [illegible]
[illegible] that they have [illegible] her part

Great hearted England we have fought the fight
Together and our mingled blood has flowed
Full well we know that underneath that mask
Of cool indifference there beats a heart
[illegible] as your own gaunt ships when [illegible]
[illegible] warm and gentle as your summer skies
[illegible] nation's heart that beats through out a land
Where kings may be beloved and Monarchy
Can teach Republics how they may be free

[illegible] What has England done? When came the call
She counted not the cost but gave her all

[illegible] it would be appropriate to change the name from Fayette County [illegible] Connellsville [illegible] the place all [illegible] the lead is entitled to recognition.

The meeting tomorrow afternoon in observance of Britain's Day will give you an opportunity for you to [illegible] that you have a comprehension of the answer to one question "What has England done?"

When Sir Henry Rawlinson commander of the Fourth British Army said that "No troops ever fought more valiantly" we of course know that he had reference to the American doughboys who were brigaded with his own Terriers.

Figuring out how much you will give to the War Chest won't interfere with your worship tomorrow provided you figure right.

Subscribing to the War Chest is merely one of the requirements necessary to securing a place on the honor roll the boys Over There will compile when they come home.

NEARLY 1,500 MEN FROM TWO LOCAL DISTRICTS ACCEPTED FOR SERVICE OF THE NATION

Wharton township.

In the registration of June 5 1917 Local Board No 2 received 2 694 men. In that of June 5 1918 and August 24 1918 299 men registered under Board No 2 and in the September 12 registration 3 [illegible] 6 were listed a total of 6 823 men.

Local Board No 5 had under its jurisdiction 226 men of which number 2 045 registered on June [illegible] 1917 242 on June 5 1918 and August 24 1918 and 2 149 on September 12 1918.

The registration of District No 2 for the three periods and the number of men placed in each of the five classes follows:

Registration	1	2	3	4	5
First	856	2	10	814	495
Second	17[illegible]	[illegible]2	3[illegible]	31	9
Third including men from June inclusive	49[illegible]	[illegible]8	[illegible]	41	131
Third 8 years	[illegible]	0		0	1
Totals	1 [illegible]0	632	391	5	710

The difference between the number of men registered on June 5 1917 and the 2 678 classified is due to 19 enemy aliens who were not given classification. Local Board No [illegible] released 50 Class 1 men to join the navy. The board actually inducted 948 men of which 85 were rejected at camp. Of the June 1917 registration 68 men in District No 2 were given exemptions on industrial claims. Forty two men of the same district were granted exemption on the same grounds in the June and August registrations of 1918. There is no record of exemptions given men of the September 12 registration.

Board No 2 classified 78 men in 1917 as qualified for limited service and of the June and August registrations of 1918 [illegible] were given the same classification. On June [illegible] 1917 [illegible] men registered with Board No [illegible]. Of this number five failed to [illegible] for examination 41 were ordered to camp four were placed in limited service and the remaining 48 were given deferred classification.

The registration for District No [illegible] for the three periods and the number of men placed in each of the five classes follows:

Registration	1	2	3	4	5
First	[illegible]	[illegible]		6[illegible]5	341
Second	12	[illegible]	11	1
Third including men from 18-36 inclusive	[illegible]	[illegible]		8	14
Total	[illegible]51	181	11	1 10[illegible]	[illegible]

Of the class 1 men of the first registration the board examined and found physically qualified 608 men. Of the Class 1 men of the second registration [illegible] passed the examination and of the Class 1 men of the last registration the board examined and found physically qualified 224.

The board actually inducted 6[illegible] men of which number [illegible] were rejected at camp.

The draft boards are now completing their final reports. Local Board No 5 has already completed its work on classification and No [illegible] is rapidly completing the task.

The local boards took office in July, 1917 being sworn in on the first day of that month. Between June 1917 the registration day and July 1 the duties of the draft board were handled by the sheriff and the election officer.

Attorney F D Munson Dr H D Brooks and Harry M McDonald the last named of Dawson were the first members of Board No 2. On August 1 1917 Messrs Munson and Brooks resigned Harry Dunn and D J French Kerr being appointed. About September 1 Mr McDonald [illegible] resigned and Dr J P McCormick succeeded him. Following the resignation Dr Brooks entered the [illegible] receiving a commission as lieutenant and later sent overseas.

The offices of Board No 2 were moved from the Title & Trust Building to the state armory. During the first registration that of June 5 1917 Miss Veng and George Whipkey of Dawson were assistants. Miss Wilda Hetrick was the first clerk of the board working up until the time of her death.

On January 3 Miss Ethel Ruth was made chief clerk and on October 1 Private Aloysius Mitteredi was assigned to a clerkship. In the registration of September 1918 Hugh Fox and Joseph Cunco were assistants. In the first questionnaire period after the June 1917 registration the board was assisted by J R Mestrezat and A B Hood.

The offices of Local Board for District No 5 have been located in the offices of Sterling Highbee and Mattney in the Title & Trust building which firm donated the space. C B Franks of Leisenring Dr J H Hazlett of Vanderbilt and Curtis Sipe of Mill Run were appointed to be members of the board. Before he was sworn in Mr Sipe asked to be excused and W S Colborn also of Mill Run was appointed in his place.

The personnel of Board No 5 has not changed since the members took office. Since August 11 1918 however there has been a vacancy on it caused by the resignation of Dr J H Hazlett who entered the service being commissioned a lieutenant. He is now overseas the captain of a hospital unit.

Miss Edna Harris has been chief clerk of the board and in that capacity has handled the greatest part of the work. Attorney R S Matthews although not a member of the board has acted in the capacity of legal advisor and has devoted most of his time to the work of the board. With Miss Harris and Attorney Matthews handling the work of the draft board the actual members were relieved of many duties.

Dr J H Hazlett examining physician up until his entrance into the service was assisted at times by Dr C W Utts and Dr T B Echard. After Dr Hazlett went into training Dr H J Bell of Dawson voluntarily took up the work of examining the registrants although he had not received an appointment.

SUGAR SHOWED OUR BACKBONE

American Willingness to Give Up Luxury Demonstrated Nation's War Conscience.

STAND WITH THE ALLIES.

By Reducing Consumption People of the United States Averted a Famine at Home in Spite of Low Supplies.

The fact that the people of the United States were able to reduce by more than one-half million tons their July, August, September and October consumption of sugar proves conclusively that their war conscience was thoroughly awakened and that the country as a whole stood ready to follow the injunctions of the Government.

Our normal consumption of sugar in the four-month period beginning with July has been 400,000 tons per month, a total of 1,600,000 for the quarter year.

In July, when our sugar stringency began to reach its height, consumption was reduced to 280,000 tons. In August only 325,000 tons went into distribution and in September only 279,000 tons. In October the distribution fell to 230,000 tons.

If the general public had failed to observe the injunctions of the Food Administration this country would have been in the throes of a sugar famine before the end of August. Our visible supplies were so low as to bring great anxiety to those familiar with the sugar situation. They feared that it would be absolutely impossible to reduce consumption to a point where sugar would no longer be a mere luxury in the American diet.

Few accomplishments of the Food Administration will stand forth so predominantly as this reduced consumption of sugar. By it we have been able to bridge over the period of stringency until the new beet and Louisiana cane sugar crops were in sight.

Now the nation is in a position so that if we choose we may return to our normal home use of sugar, and Europe, with the release of ships to go far afield, can maintain its recent restricted rations. If, however, those nations are to increase their use of sugar very considerably it must be by our continued sharing with them through limiting our own consumption.

The Lonely Magician.

"A man ought never to learn to do card tricks," said Broncho Bob.

"Why not?"

"If he wins in a poker game everybody looks suspicious and if he doesn't win everybody laughs."

No Demand.

"Speaking of the law of supply and demand—" began the man with an instinct for explanation.

"Nobody demands any merchandise now," interrupted Miss Cayenne. "It is a matter of supply and request."

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

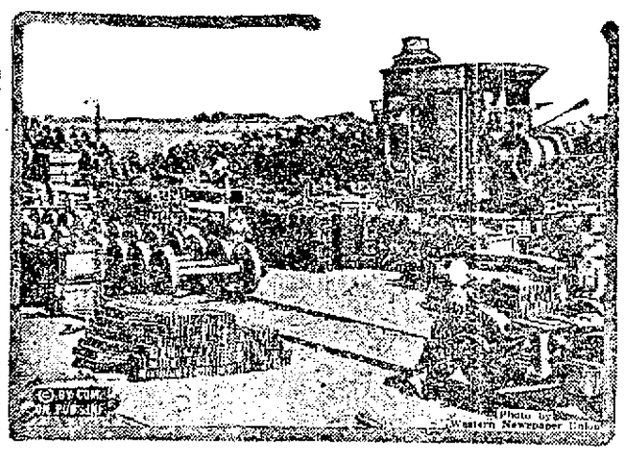

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs.

This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the weaknesses and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil is inclosed in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a small swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables the organs to throw off the poisons which cause premature old age. New life and strength increase as you continue the treatment. When completely restored continue taking a capsule or two each day. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules will keep you in health and vigor and prevent a return of the disease.

Do not wait until old age or disease have settled down for good. Go to your druggist and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. But remember to ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. In sealed packages.

A MAN TO MAN PROPOSITION

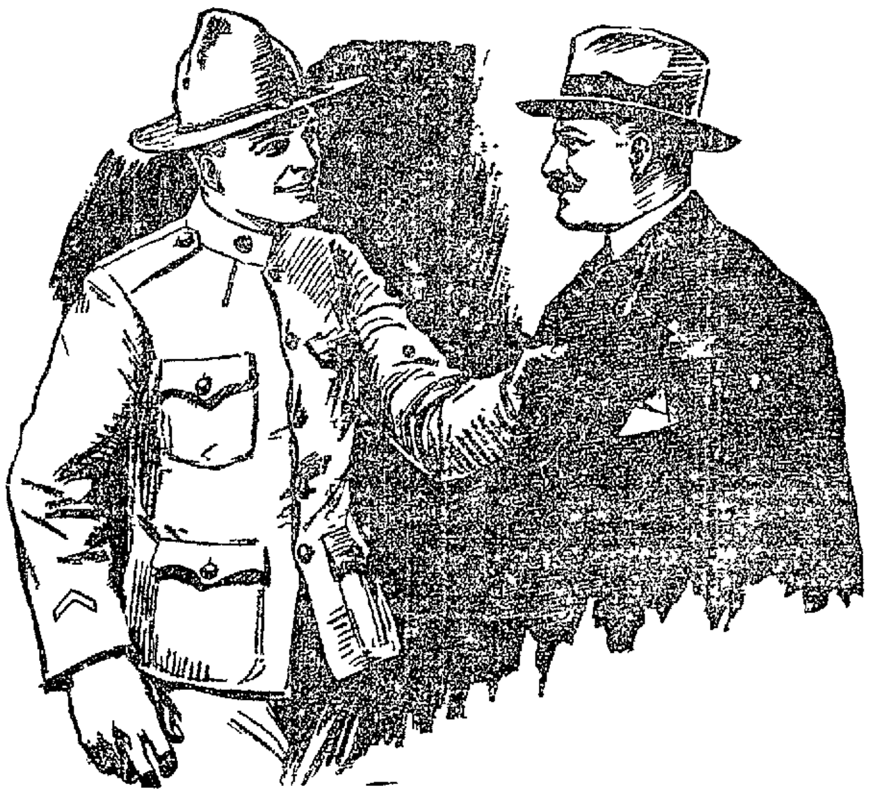

A further duty, a supreme obligation awaits you. You have met every war time challenge on the home front just as your service heroes have met the war---challenges that defeated the Prussians.

Now man to man, are YOU going to desert these service men in the days of demobilization by failing to supply their home comforts, little luxuries, recreation, by failing to assist the welfare and relief organizations included in The Fayette County War Chest?

It is a man to man challenge; your service man has an abiding faith in you that you will do your share just as willingly and just as effectively in the "finishing up" process as he did in the "treating 'em rough stage."

Again, now, Man to Man, are you worthy of that abiding faith? When he comes back will YOU have the right to cheer, the right to say "I was with you every step of the way, welcome home?"

The War Chest isn't for the other fellow; it's your war chest; it's your measure of appreciation, it's your obligation and duty--yes your pleasure.

A returned fighter, in a speech at Connellsville used this illustration---"If your wife undergoes an operation, you don't quit looking after her and taking care of her immediately the operation is performed. You take care of her and look after her, cheer her until she is completely recovered."

You'd do the same thing for your boy if he was ill over here. He'll be ill over there, of homesickness and lonesomeness and discouragement if you fail in the task now to take care of him, to cheer him, to stand by him until he comes home.

Fill the War Chest for God and Country

There Can Be No Sidestepping

Your pledge to the War Chest will be divided among the eight officially recognized war relief and welfare agencies. Much Property Reverts to Crown

Few people realize the large amount of property which passes every year to the crown of England owing to the owners dying without heirs or next of kin and without having made a will In most of these cases the deceased is an illegitimate person with no children

As a rule the crown does not appropriate the whole of the property but makes what is called a compassionate allowance to the relatives of the deceased although they may not be his relatives according to law, and in some cases to friends and servants who have performed services for him which entitle them to consideration

The amount of the allowance is determined by the treasury or in the case of the estates of persons dying within the duchy of Lancaster by the chancellor of the duchy

THE LIGHT IN THE CLEARING

A TALE OF THE NORTH COUNTRY IN THE TIME OF SILAS WRIGHT

PREFACE

The Light in the Clearing shone upon many things and mostly upon those which, above all others, have impassioned and perpetuated the Spirit of America and which, just now, seem to me to be worthy of attention. I believe that spirit to be the very candle of the Lord which, in this dark and windy night of time, has flickered, so that the souls of the faithful have been afraid. But let us be of good cheer. It is shining brighter as I write and, under God, I believe it shall, by and by, be seen and loved of all men.

One self-contained, Homeric figure, of the remote country-side in which I was born, had the true Spirit of Democracy and shed its light abroad in the senate of the United States and the capitol at Albany. He carried the Candle of the Lord. It led him to a height of self-forgetfulness achieved by only two others—Washington and Lincoln. Yet I have been surprised by the profound and general ignorance of this generation regarding the career of Silas Wright.

The distinguished senator who served at his side for many years, Thomas H. Benton of Missouri, has this to say of Silas Wright in his Thirty Years' View:

"He refused cabinet appointments under his fast friend Van Buren and under Polk, whom he may be said to have elected. He refused a seat on the bench of the Supreme court of the United States; he rejected instantly the nomination in 1844 for vice president; he refused to be put in nomination for the presidency. He spent that time in declining office which others did in winning it. The offices he did accept, it might well be said, were thrust upon him. He was born great and above office and unwillingly descended to it."

So much by way of preparing the reader to meet the great commoner in these pages.

There were those who accused Mr. Wright of being a spoilsman, the only warrant for which claim would seem to be his remark in a letter: "When our enemies accuse us of feeding our friends instead of them never let them lie in telling the story."

He was, in fact, a human being, through and through, but so upright that they used to say of him that he was "as honest as any man under heaven or in it."

For my knowledge of the color and spirit of the time I am indebted to a long course of reading in its books, newspapers and periodicals, notably the North American Review, the United States Magazine and Democratic Review, the New York Mirror, the Knickerbocker, the St. Lawrence Republican, Benton's Thirty Years' View, Bancroft's Life of Martin Van Buren, histories of Wright, and his time by Hammond and Jenkins, and to many manuscript letters of the distinguished commoner in the New York public library and in the possession of Mr. Harmon Wright of Weybridge, Vermont.

To any who may think that they discover portraits in these pages I desire to say that all the characters—save only Silas Wright and President Van Buren and Barton Baynes—are purely imaginary. However, there were Grimshaws and Purvises and Binkseys and Aunt Deels and Uncle Peabodys in almost every rustic neighborhood those days, and I regret to add that Roving Kate was on many roads. The case of Amos Grimshaw bears a striking resemblance to that of young Bickford, executed long ago in Malone, for the particulars of which case I am indebted to my friend, Mr. H. L. Ives of Peterboro.

CHAPTER I.

The Melon Harvest.

Once upon a time I owned a watermelon. I say once because I never did it again. When I got through owning that melon I never wanted another. The time was 1831; I was a boy of seven and the melon was the first of all my harvests.

I didn't know much about myself those days except the fact that my name was Bart Baynes and, further, that I was an orphan who owned a watermelon and a little spotted hen and lived on Rattleroad in a neighborhood called Lickitysplit. I lived with my Aunt Deel and my Uncle Peabody Baynes on a farm. They were brother and sister—he about thirty-eight and she a little beyond the far-distant goal of forty.

My father and mother died in a scourge of diphtheria that swept the neighborhood when I was a boy of five.

A few days after I arrived in the home of my aunt and uncle I slyly entered the parlor and climbed the whatnot to examine some white flowers on its top shelf and tipped the whole thing over, scattering its burden of albums, wax flowers and seashells on the floor. My aunt came running on her tiptoes and exclaimed: "Mercy! Come right out o' here this minute—you pest!"

I took some rather long steps going out, which were due to the fact that Aunt Deel had hold of my hand. While I sat weeping she went back into the parlor and began to pick up things.

"My wreath! my wreath!" I heard her moaning.

How well I remember that little assemblage of flower ghosts in wax! They had no more right to associate with human beings than the ghosts of fable. Uncle Peabody used to call them the "Minerva flowers" because they were a present from his Aunt Minerva. When Aunt Deel returned to the kitchen where I sat—a sorrowing little refugee hunched up in a corner—she said: "I'll have to tell your Uncle Peabody—ayes!"

"Oh please don't tell my Uncle Peabody," I wailed.

"Ayes! I'll have to tell him," she answered firmly.

For the first time I looked for him with dread at the window and when he came I hid in a closet and heard that solemn and penetrating note in her voice as she said:

"I guess you'll have to take that boy away—ayes!"

"What now?" he asked.

"My sta's!" he sneaked into the parlor and tipped over the what-not and smashed that beautiful wax wreath!"

"Jerusalem four-corners!" he exclaimed. "I'll have to—"

He stopped as he was wont to do on the threshold of strong opinions and momentous resolutions.

The rest of the conversation was drowned in my own cries and Uncle Peabody came and lifted me tenderly and carried me upstairs.

He sat down with me on his lap and hushed my cries. Then he said very gently:

"Now, Bub, you and me have got to be careful. What-nots and albums and wax flowers and haircloth sofys are the most dang'rous critters in St. Lawrence county. They're purty savage. Keep your eye peeled. You can't tell what minute they'll jump on ye. More boys have been dragged away and tore to pieces by 'em than by all the bears and panthers in the woods. Keep out o' that old parlor. Ye might as well go into a cage o' wolves. How be I goin' to make ye remember it?"

"I don't know," I whimpered and began to cry out in fearful anticipation.

He set me in a chair, picked up one of his old carpet-slippers and began to thump the bed with it. He belabored

He Belabored the Bed With Tremendous Vigor, Exclaiming "You Dreadful Child!"

the bed with tremendous vigor. Meanwhile he looked at me and exclaimed: "You dreadful child!"

I knew that my sins were responsible for this violence. It frightened me and my cries increased.

The door at the bottom of the stairs opened suddenly.

Aunt Deel called:

"Don't lose your temper, Peabody. I think you've gone fur 'nough—ayes!"

Uncle Peabody stopped and blew as if he were very tired and then I caught a look in his face that reassured me.

He called back to her: "I wouldn't 'a' cared so much if it hadn't 'a' been the what-not and them Minerva flowers. When a boy tips over a what-not he's goin' it purty strong."

"Well, don't be too severe. You'd better come now and git me a pail o' water—ayes, I think ye had."

Uncle Peabody did a lot of sneezing and coughing with his big, red handkerchief over his face and I was not old enough then to understand it. He kissed me and took my little hand in his big hard one and led me down the stairs.

I dreamed that night that a long-legged what-not, with a wax wreath in its hands, chased me around the house and caught and bit me on the neck. I called for help and uncle came and found me on the floor and put me back to bed again.

For a long time I thought that the way a man punished a boy was by thumping his bed. I knew that women had a different and less satisfactory method, for I remembered that my mother had spanked me and Aunt Deel had a way of giving my hands and head a kind of watermelon thump with the middle finger of her right hand and with a curious look in her eyes. Uncle Peabody used to call it a "scruptious look." Almost always he whacked the bed with his slipper. There were exceptions, however, and, by and by, I came to know in each case the destination of the slipper, for if I had done anything which really afflicted my conscience that strip of leather seemed to know the truth, and found its way to my person.

Aunt Deel toiled incessantly. She washed and scrubbed and polished and dusted and sewed and knit from morning until night. She lived in mortal fear that company would come and find her unprepared—Almn Jones or Jabez Lincoln and his wife, or Ben and Mary Humphries, or "Mr. and Mrs. Horace Dunkelberg." These were the people of whom she talked when the neighbors came in and when she was not talking of the Baynesses. I observed that she always said "Mr. and Mrs. Horace Dunkelberg." They were the conversational ornaments of our home. "As Mrs. Horace Dunkelberg says," or, "as I said to Mr. Horace Dunkelberg," were phrases calculated to establish our social standing. I supposed that the world was peopled by Jonases, Lincolns, Humphries and Dunkelbergs, but mostly by Dunkelbergs. These latter were very rich people who lived in Canton village.

I know, now, how dearly Aunt Deel loved her brother and me. I must have been a great trial to that woman of forty unused to the pranks of children and the tender offices of a mother. Naturally I turned from her to my Uncle Peabody as a refuge and a help in time of trouble, with increasing fondness. He had no knitting or sewing to do and when Uncle Peabody sat in the house he gave all his time to me and we weathered many a storm together as we sat silently in his favorite corner, of an evening, when I always went to sleep in his arms.

I was seven years old when Uncle Peabody gave me the watermelon seeds. I put one of them in my mouth and bit it.

"It appears to me there's an awful draft blowin' down your throat," said Uncle Peabody. "You ain't no business eatin' a melon seed."

"Why?" was my query.

"'Cause it was made to put in the ground. Didn't you know it was alive?"

"Alive!" I exclaimed.

"Alive," said he. "I'll show ye."

He put a number of the seeds in the ground and covered them, and said that part of the garden should be mine. I watched it every day and by and by two vines came up. One sickened and died in dry weather. Uncle Peabody said that I must water the other every day. I did it faithfully and the vine throve.

It was hard work, I thought, to go down into the garden, night and morning, with my little pail full of water, but uncle said that I should get my pay when the melon was ripe. I had also to keep the wood-box full and feed the chickens. They were odious tasks. When I asked Aunt Deel what I should get for doing them she answered quickly:

"Nospanks and bread and butter—ayes!"

When I asked what were "nospanks" she told me that they were part of the wages of a good child. I was better paid for my care of the watermelon vine, for its growth was measured with a string every day and kept me interested. One morning I found five blossoms on it. I picked one and carried it to Aunt Deel. Another I destroyed in the tragedy of catching a bumblebee which had crawled into its cup. In due time three small melons appeared. When they were as big as a baseball I picked two of them. One I tasted and threw away as I ran to the pump for relief. The other I hurled at a dog on my way to school.

So that last melon on the vine had my undivided affection. It grew in size and reputation, and soon I learned that a reputation is about the worst thing that a watermelon can acquire while it is on the vine. I invited everybody that came to the house to go and see my watermelon. They looked it over and said pleasant things about it. When I was a boy people used to treat children and watermelons with a like solicitude. Both were a subject for jests and produced similar reactions in the human countenance.

At last Uncle Peabody agreed with me that it was about time to pick the melon. I decided to pick it immediately after meeting on Sunday, so that I could give it to my aunt and uncle at dinner-time. When we got home I ran for the garden. My feet and those of our friends and neighbors had literally worn a path to the melon. In eager haste I got my little wheelbarrow and ran with it to the end of that path. There I found nothing but broken vines! The melon had vanished. I ran back to the house almost overcome by a feeling of alarm, for I had thought long of that hour of pride when I should bring the melon and present it to my aunt and uncle.

"Uncle Peabody," I shouted, "my melon is gone."

"Well, I vum!" said he, "somebody must 'a' stole it."

"But it was my melon," I said with a trembling voice.

"Yes, and I vum it's too bad! But, Bart, you ain't learned yit that there are wicked people in the world who come and take what don't belong to 'em."

There were tears in my eyes when I asked:

"They'll bring it back, won't they?"

"Never!" said Uncle Peabody, "I'm afraid they've et it up."

He had no sooner said it than a cry broke from my lips, and I sank down upon the grass moaning and sobbing. I lay amidst the ruins of the simple faith of childhood. It was as if the world and all its joys had come to an end.

Aunt Deel spoke in a low, kindly tone and came and lifted me to my feet very tenderly.

"Come, Bart, don't feel so about that old melon," said she, "it ain't worth it. Come with me. I'm going to give you a present—ayes I be!"

I was still crying when she took me to her trunk, and offered the grateful assuagement of candy and a belt, all embroidered with blue and white beads.

"Now you see, Bart, how low and mean anybody is that takes what don't belong to 'em—ayes! They're snakes! Everybody hates 'em an' stamps on 'em when they come in sight—ayes!"

The abomination of the Lord was in her look and manner. How it shook my soul! He who had taken the watermelon had also taken from me something I was never to have again, and a very wonderful thing it was—faith in the goodness of men. My eyes had seen evil. The world had committed its first offense against me and my spirit was no longer the white and beautiful thing it had been. Still, therein is the beginning of wisdom and, looking down the long vista of the years, I thank God for the great harvest of the lost watermelon. Better things had come in its place—understanding and what more, often I have vainly tried to estimate. For one thing that sudden revelation of the heart of childhood had lifted my aunt's out of the cold storage of a puritanic spirit, and warmed it into new life and opened its door for me.

In the afternoon she sent me over to Wills' to borrow a little tea. I stopped for a few minutes to play with Henry Wills—a boy not quite a year older than I. While playing there I discovered a piece of the rind of my melon in the dooryard. On that piece of rind I saw the cross which I had made one day with my thumb-nail. It was intended to indicate that the melon was solely and wholly mine. I felt a flush of anger.

"I hate you," I said as I approached him.

"I hate you," he answered.

"You're a snake!" I said

We now stood, face to face and breast to breast, like a pair of young roosters. He gave me a shove and told me to go home. I gave him a shove and told him I wouldn't. I pushed up close to him again and we glared into each other's eyes.

Suddenly he spat in my face. I gave him a scratch on the forehead with my finger-nails. Then we fell upon each other and rolled on the ground and hit and scratched with feline ferocity.

Mrs. Wills run out of the house and parted us. Our blood was hot, and leaking through the skin of our faces a little.

"He pitched on me," Henry explained.

I couldn't speak.

"Go right home—this minute—you brat!" said Mrs. Wills in anger. "Here's your tea. Don't you ever come here again."

I took the tea and started down the road weeping. What a bitter day that was for me! I dreaded to face my aunt and uncle. Coming through the grove down by our gate I met Uncle Peabody. With the keen insight of the father of the prodigal son he had seen me coming "a long way off" and shouted:

"Well, here ye be—I was kind o' worried, Bub."

Then his eye caught the look of dejection in my gait and figure. He hurried toward me. He stopped as I came sobbing to his feet.

"Why, what's the matter?" he asked gently, as he took the tea cup from my hand, and sat down upon his heels.

I could only fall into his arms and express myself in the grief of childhood. He hugged me close and begged me to tell him what was the matter.

"That Wills boy stole my melon," I said, and the words came slow with sobs.

"Oh, no, he didn't," said Uncle Peabody.

"Yes he did. I saw a piece o' the rin'."

"Well by—" said Uncle Peabody, stopping, as usual, at the edge of the precipice.

"He's a snake," I added.

"And you fit and he scratched you up that way?"

"I scratched him, too."

"Don't you say a word about it to Aunt Deel. Don't ever speak o' that miserable melon ag'in to anybody. You scoot around to the barn, an' I'll be there in a minute and fix ye up."

He went by the road with the tea and I ran around to the lane and up to the stable. Uncle Peabody met me there in a moment and brought a pail of water and washed my face so that I felt and looked more respectable.

The worst was over for that day, but the Baynes-Wills feud had begun. It led to many a fight in the school yard and on the way home. We were so evenly matched that our quarrel went on for a long time and gathered intensity as it continued.

One June day Uncle Peabody and I, from down in the fields, saw a fine carriage drive in at our gate. He stopped and looked intently.

"Jerusalem four-corners!" he exclaimed. "It's Mr. and Mrs. Horace Dunkelberg."

My heart beat fast at thought of the legendary Dunkelbergs. Uncle looked me over from top to toe. "Heavens!" he exclaimed. "Go down to the brook and wash the mud off yer feet an' legs."

I ran for the brook and before I had returned to my uncle I heard the horn blow.

"The Dunkelbergs!—the Dunkelbergs! Come quick!" it seemed to say.

Mr. Dunkelberg was a big, broad-shouldered, solemn-looking man. Somehow his face reminded me of a lion's which I had seen in one of my picture books. He had a thick, long, outstanding mustache and side whiskers, and deep-set eyes and heavy eyebrows. He stood for half a moment looking down at me from a great height, with his right hand in his pocket. I heard a little jingle of coins down where his hand was. It excited my curiosity. He took a step toward me and I retreated. I feared, a little, this big, lion-like man. My fears left me suddenly when he spoke in a small squeaky voice that reminded me of the chirping of a bird.

"Little boy, come here and I will make you a present," said he.

It reminded me of my disappointment when uncle tried to shoot his gun at a squirrel and only the cap cracked.

I went to him and he laid a silver piece in the palm of my hand. Aunt Deel began to hurry about getting dinner ready while Uncle Peabody and I sat down on the porch with our guests, among whom was a pretty, blue-eyed girl of about my own age, with long, golden-brown hair that hung in curls.

"Sally, this is Barton Baynes—can't you shake hands with him?" said Mrs. Dunkelberg.

With a smile the girl came and offered me her hand and made a funny bow and said that she was glad to see me. I took her hand awkwardly and made no reply. I had never seen many girls and had no very high opinion of them.

As we sat there I heard the men talking about the great Silas Wright, who had just returned to his home in Canton. He had not entered my consciousness until then.

While I sat listening I felt a tweak of my hair, and looking around I saw the Dunkelberg girl standing behind me with a saucy smile on her face.

"Won't you come and play with me?" she asked.

I took her out in the garden to show her where my watermelon had lain. At the moment I couldn't think of anything else to show her. As we walked along I observed that her feet were in dainty shiny button-shoes. Suddenly I began to be ashamed of my feet that were browned by the sunlight and scratched by the briers. The absent watermelon didn't seem to interest her.

"Let's play house in the grove," said she, and showed me how to build a house by laying rows of stones with an opening for a door.

"Now you be my husband," said she.

Oddly enough I had heard of husbands but had only a shadowy notion of what they were. I knew that there was none in our house.

"What's that?" I asked.

She laughed and answered: "Somebody that a girl is married to."

"You mean a father?"

"Yes."

"Once I had a father," I boasted.

"Well, we'll play we're married and that you have just got home from a journey. You go out in the woods and then you come home and I'll meet you at the door."

I did as she bade me but I was not glad enough to see her.

"You must kiss me," she prompted in a whisper.

I kissed her very swiftly and gingerly—like one picking up a hot coal—and she caught me in her arms and kissed me three times while her soft hair threw its golden veil over our faces.

"Oh, I'm so glad to see you," she said as she drew away from me and shook back her hair.

"Golly! this is fun!" I said.

"Now go to sleep and I'll tell you a story," said she.

Then she told pretty tales of fairies and of grand ladies and noble gentlemen who wore gold coats and swords and diamonds and silks, and said wonderful words in such a wonderful way. I dare say it prospered all the better in my ears because of the mystery by which its meanings were partly hidden. I had many questions to ask and she told me what were fairies and silks and diamonds and grand ladies and noble gentlemen.

We sat down to one of our familiar dinners of salt pork and milk gravy and apple pie now enriched by sweet pickles and preserves and frosted cake.

A query had entered my mind and soon after we had begun eating I asked:

"Aunt Deel, what is the difference between a boy and a girl?"

There was a little silence in which my aunt drew in her breath and exclaimed, "Why!" and turned very red and covered her face with her napkin. Uncle Peabody laughed so loudly that the chickens began to cackle. Mr. and Mrs. Dunkelberg also covered their faces. Aunt Deel rose and went to the stove and shoved the teapot along, exclaiming:

SALTS IS FINE FOR KIDNEYS, QUIT MEAT

Harmless to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.—Adv.

Cozy Furs and Wraps for Children

Small girls, never too small to enjoy their pretty finery, are bobbing up on the promenades and in the parks, dressed in their new winter clothes. They are anticipating the snow with cozy furs and coats and bright hats and bonnets, destined to make them look like gay winter flowers against a white background, when it flies. Their millinery is colorful and often their coats are in light tones and the shoes of the small fry, more often than not, have white uppers with black vamps. Rose, bright blues and the brown and castor colors are much in evidence in millinery and we may promise ourselves a liberal sprinkling of red tones as the winter advances. Solomon in all his glory may have been arrayed as gorgeously as one of these youngsters, but he never was better suited or happier over it.

Of all her belongings the little girl seems to get the most pure joy out of fur neckpieces and muffs. Almost as soon as she can walk they are ready for her. What woman cannot recall the first fur set that came into her possession—usually at Christmas time, and her unmixed delight in it? Nothing but the first parasol and the first pocketbook can bring the same thrill to the childish heart. Here are at least two good hints for the holidays:

Squirrel, beaver, imitation ermine, krimmer and other inexpensive skins are appropriate for children and are liked best. There are many others, including those that have acquired names given them by the furriers, and the fine thing about them is that they are within the reach of nearly all people. For little girls of three and over there are miniature round muffs and flat scarfs that are delightfully cozy. So far as styles are concerned there is little variation in children's furs—they are much alike until the miss is well advanced in the flapper stage. The set illustrated is a familiar and reliable type for little folks. It is a long, crinkly white fur that looks best on the youngest wearers, where it usually finds itself in the company of bright-hued broadcloth coats and velvet hats or bonnets more or less fluffy with frills.

JACK FROST is a real enemy of the Starting and Lighting Battery. Prepare your battery to resist his attacks by making sure that it is in good condition for its winter's work.

Drive around to our "Exide" Service Station and let us inspect your battery. We make no charge for this service. Expert attention at this time will assure you good service this winter and save you money.

If you do not run your car this winter—send your battery to us and let us care for it during the cold weather. We will give it proper care and return it to you in the spring in good condition. Our small charge for this service may save you the cost of a new battery in the spring.

HONOR ROLL OF CONNELLSVILLE MEN AND WOMEN IN THE

NEARLY 900 NAMES ON LIST OF THOSE WHO RESPONDED TO THE CALL OF THEIR COUNTRY

Not All Were Fortunate Enough to Reach the Scene of Action.

FIVE WOMEN ARE INCLUDED

They Volunteered to Become Workers Under the Red Cross; In Appended List Will be Found Home Address, Age of Enlistment and Unit.

Nearly 900 men and women who called Connellsville home were enrolled voluntarily or through the selective draft for service in the war against Teutonic aggression. They compose the Honor Roll of the city which was dedicated last night at city hall. The final list announced by Dr. Ellis B. Burgess, of the Honor Roll committee, contained 833 names. Additions to this are expected. Though the committee exerted every effort to made up a complete roll the task was one of such magnitude that it is presumed there will be some omissions. For any further names of persons entitled to a place on the roll the committee will be thankful.

Not all whose names appear were fortunate enough to get to the scene of action in France and elsewhere on the battle front. Some were turned back at the training camps. Some reached embarkation camps and there were halted by the signing of the armistice. The roll includes all who responded to the call of country.

Among the number who volunteered their services were five young women whose desire it was to shoulder the onerous duties of Red Cross nurses.

In the appended list will be found, so far as was procurable, the rank, street address, age at time of enlistment, the date of enlistment and the unit of service, they appearing in the order named. The list is alphabetically arranged. It follows:

ALL WHO CALL THE CITY "HOME" WERE INCLUDED IN ROLL

The Honor Roll is intended to be of Connellsville alone but there are listed on it some persons who are not at this time residents of the city.

The committee was governer by the following rules:

Every boy who has or had his home residence in the city was included.

If he lived outside the city limits and his parents moved to the city after his entry into the service he was considered a resident here.

If a boy spent a goodly portion of his life here and then moved away, enlisting elsewhere, he was still considered eligible for the honor roll.

Aliens living in Connellsville and enlisting in Allied armies, not including the United States, were not classed as having a place on the roll, but all in the American army were enrolled.

All Connellsville boys in the Allied armies were placed on the roll.

The same rules applied to women.

SOLDIERS' HEARTS WERE MADE GLAD WITH LARGE SHIPMENT OF SPORTING EQUIPMENT

Aviators Inspecting Shipment of Athletic Goods Just Before Armistice Was Signed.

The photograph shows aviators at a flying school in France examining a shipment of sporting goods that arrived just previous to the signing of the armistice with Germany. The equipment was sent by the National Aeronautic committee, working in association with the war department commission of training camp activities.

The shipment included outfits for baseball, football, soccer, basketball, track athletics, indoor baseball, medicine balls, boxing gloves and the like. Phonographs and various kinds of musical instruments were also included.

RICKENBACHER IS A CAPTAIN OF FLIERS

Ex-Racing Driver Honored for Great Work on Battle Front.

Turned Down at Start Because of Lack of College Education, He Finally Landed as Sergeant in Army Signal Corps.

It goes without saying that the many friends of Eddie Rickenbacher, ex-racing driver, are delighted that this American ace of aces was made a captain in the aviation corps just before the end of hostilities for his great work on the battle front.

His promotion makes it meet to recall the efforts made by Rick to get into the flying work. He came back from England about the time this country entered the war. He had been working in the Sunbeam factory there. Rick was filled with the idea that racing drivers, with their knowledge of internal-combustion engines and their proved courage in speed work, would make ideal airmen. He telegraphed about the country, getting pledges from the racing drivers to enter the government service, and corralled a whole squad. This cost him a great deal of money, which he spent willingly. Then the whole thing was turned down, because the racing drivers did not qualify as college men.

Undaunted, Rick got into the army as a sergeant in the signal corps. When he first went abroad he drove a car for General Pershing. Later his ambition was realized, and he was commissioned a lieutenant in the aviation corps. He has a record of 24 enemy airplanes officially and a lot more unofficially.

It is worth while noting that another ex-racing driver, Caleb S. Bragg it was, who recently made a wonderful record from Dayton to Washington and then to New York.

SOLDIERS TAKE TO FOOTBALL

Intercollegiate Game Makes Hit With Army Boys In Porto Rico, Despite Heat and Sand.

Football, not soccer, but the man-to-man intercollegiate type, has been started in Porto Rico and the soldiers are taking to it like ducks to water. Despite heat and sandy playing field that elsewhere would be considered too heavy for fast team work.

The First battalion of the Three Hundred and Seventy-fourth regiment started the football craze late in September by challenging the rest of the regiment. Neither side scored, but two broken noses were reported among the casualties. This was the first blood drawn by the warriors and it added much zest to the life of the camp that the Three Hundred and Seventy-Third regiment has taken up the game.

As a result of the interest in the football games the athletic director has added the sport to the regular program of "play day" events for the troops. This is probably the first appearance of football in the tropics.

awarded the Italian Croce de Geurra, for conspicuous bravery on the Italian front.

This information was contained in a letter from the major's daughter to a friend in this country.

Major Nickalls, noted oarsman at Oxford, England, came to this country eight years ago as coach of the Detroit Boat club. Two years later he was called to the University of Pennsylvania as the successor of Ellis Ward.

NATIONAL BODY IS PLANNED

Combination of Trap Shooting Organizations Is Within Possibilities—Similar to A. A. U.

A combination of several of the trap-shooting organizations is under way, and it appears probable that a national association will soon exist for the benefit of the sport and amateur and professional shooters. The old Interstate Trap-shooting association, through its development department, is being reorganized along new and broader lines, and the American Amateur Trap-shooters' association being combined with it.

The plans for the new association are in many ways similar to the A. A. U. and the United States Golf association. They provide for the membership of all amateur shooters, who will control the sport through representatives from the state associations. In addition to these memberships, provisions are made for supporting memberships by all interested organizations.

It is proposed that the new association shall compile the averages of all shooters and arrange for their handicapping and classification. It will also arrange for and provide trophies, award medals, determine rules and regulations for the sport and for the determination of state and national champions.

These Players Escape.

Two well-known ball players who came safely through rather severe attacks of influenza at Camp Pike, Ark., were Ray Schmandt, former Brooklyn second baseman, and Harold Ruel, former New York Yankee catcher. Both are now recovered.

At the Theatres

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE CAILLAUX CASE"—The great international intrigue that rocked all four quarters of the earth, is being shown today. Those who have not seen this wonderful picture and desire to see one of the finest photoplays ever screened, have only to gratify their wish. The final showing of the film is being shown today. The picture follows the career of Joseph Caillaux, former premier of France, and of his ambitious wife, from the day when she shot the patriotic editor of the Paris Figaro until her husband, with Bola Pasha, is thrown in prison on evidence of pro-German activities furnished by the United States government. The production is not fiction, but fact. It is all the more fascinating because the stirring events recorded are a part of history and the persons involved are well known to readers of the daily press. The killing of Gaston Calmette by Mme Caillaux, her trial and acquittal; Caillaux's connections with Bola Pasha, recently executed for treasonable relations with Germany, and his imprisonment on alleged evidence of disloyalty furnished by the United States, makes a picture that fairly thrills with dramatic climaxes. Also the underground activities of the secret orders of the Grande Orient, which attempts to protect Caillaux from the law is a part of the absorbing drama. A selected comedy is also being shown. Monday and Tuesday Clara Kimball Young will be featured in "The House of Glass."

THE SOISSON

"A WOMAN'S FOOL"—An interesting photoplay starring Harry Carey, assisted by a cast of unusual excellence, is being shown today. The picture was taken from a novel by Owen Wister, one of the most famous writers of western stories. The production is intensely interesting and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audiences yesterday. A selected comedy is also being shown. Monday "Our Mrs. McChesney," in which Ethel Barrymore, the beautiful actress of international fame, is starred, will be presented. This is the story of a clever woman who retrieves the fallen fortunes of a business firm, for whom she is a traveling sales-woman by unique and original methods of her own. The head of the firm, a young and attractive man, falls in love with her but she will not listen to his pleadings until she has placed the business on a firm and more prosperous footing than it had ever been before, despite a rival concern's opposition. There are many other complications which this clever woman overcomes in her own distinctive way and the double romance which runs through the play provides a variety of love interests. Brilliant and sparkling comedy situations abound in this picture. Tuesday "A Gentleman's Agreement," starring Nelle Shipman, will be presented.
